

Message Creation Checklist

We all know how important messages can be to communicate who you are, what you do, and why it matters. Once you have draft messages and a plan for sharing them, use this quick checklist to double check that you are on target and most effective in your communication.

Do your messages...	If not...
✓ Relate back to your communication goals?	Revisit your communication goals and make sure your messages will resonate with your target audience and accomplish your objectives.
✓ Reflect your current communication approach? It's easy for messaging to become stale or outdated.	Set aside time every year to refresh your messaging and make changes to your communication approach.
✓ Roll off your (or your messengers') tongue?	Practice messages so they become natural and can be integrated into any conversation or presentation.
✓ Avoid industry jargon?	Simplify! How would you explain it to a 4th grader?
✓ Use positive language?	Find the upside and make that your approach.
✓ State a problem and a solution, never one or the other?	Always use both. If you don't have a solution to recommend, find another problem to address.
✓ Use data to back up points, without being overly academic?	Choose one or two compelling points and simplify the way you present them.
✓ Talk about benefits to society, not just affected children, youth, or families?	Think about what's in it for those who do not have children or a stake in the investment.
✓ Talk about results or outcomes not transactions or activities?	What's the end result you envision?
✓ Talk about values or beliefs (i.e. strengthening families)?	Connect your issue to broader societal values.
✓ Tie to "popular" issues in your community—autism, developmental delays, infant mortality, school dropout, school to prison pipeline, or violence?	How does your issue relate to the issues that are topmost on the minds of your audiences? Using these issues can allow messages like the long-used brain development argument to be "refreshed".
✓ Meet people where they are?	Put yourself in the place of your audience member. What's most important from his or her perspective? Understand where the audience is coming from and their values and tie it to that.
✓ Use a personal story to get the point across?	Find a story from your network and use it to bring your issue to life.
✓ Relay a simple and clear idea? Get to the point and do not try to over-explain the issue.	Help your audience understand your issue. Remember that less is more. One compelling sentence always trumps a ho-hum paragraph.
✓ Use the right messengers?	Identify the people most respected in your community and incorporate them in your messaging strategy.

www.advocacyandcommunication.org

For more information about ACS, please contact us at info@advocacyandcommunication.org. Follow us on LinkedIn.

Cleveland
1277 West 104th St.
Cleveland, OH 44102

Columbus
2612 Zollinger Road
Columbus, OH 43221

Washington, DC
300 New Jersey Avenue, NW
Suite 900, PMB 9005
Washington, DC 20001

Phoenix
207 North Gilbert Road
Suite 007
Phoenix, AZ 85234